 - Takeaways:
 - Cases are intertwined.
 - Multiple students can be affected.
 - More information-even if it seems small-can give us a broader understanding of the implications.

- We can provide many of the items discussed at training.
 - What can we do? An example of behind-the-scenes work.
 - Outcomes can include: weekly check-ins, welfare checks, community resource offers and referrals, check-ins from other staff or faculty as appropriate.
- Students are struggling with their mental health.
 - Sometimes what you report seems small! If a student's behavior changes, you might want to let us know!
 - For example: a regular attendee suddenly stops attending and is unresponsive.
- We have made some great connections in the community.
 - An example of work you all saw.
 - We were able to work with our community and bring in counseling services for the program.
- The team aspect matters in approaching the case.
 - Conduct and CARE can be intertwined.
